Approved For Release 2000/08/25 11-78-03130A00010 50526051-7

Subcommittee on Exploitation of Foreign Language Publications

AGENDA

- 1. Current activities of the IAC agencies providing service in the extraction and dissemination of raw information from foreign language publications.
  - a. What publications are exploited? (newspapers, periodicals, books, etc.)
  - b. Is there an area or country limitation? (e.g. Far East only, USSR only)
  - c. What is the nature of requirements served on existing services?
  - d. Are there subject limitations? (e.g. scientific only)
  - e. What reports do they produce? How are their reports disseminated?
  - f. What is the extent of existing facilities in the way of personnel, reference materials, files, etc.?
  - g. Is there a further potential or are there plans for expanding these activities?
  - h. Can or do these activities serve in any capacity as a common service to the intelligence community?
- 2. Development of needs for exploitation of foreign language publications by FDD/CIA.
  - a. What current publications should be covered? (newspapers, periodicals, books, other)
  - o. Which publications and which subjects should receive priority processing?
  - c. What method(s) of exploitation should be used? (e.g. abstracts, summaries, compilations, amnotated bibliographies, special techniques)
  - d. What method(s) of reporting should be used? (e.g. general press summaries, abstract publications, monthly, quarterly or semi-annual collations, spot reports)
  - e. What part of the effort should be set aside for specific searches in non-current publications and the preparation of comprehensive digests or compilations? What basic projects should be undertaken? In what priority?
  - f. Should FDD do only straight reporting or would insertion of factual comments be advisable or desirable where appropriate?
    - g. How can closer liaison between FDD and consumer analysts be developed?
- 3. Are present efforts in translation service of the IAC agencies effectively meeting the needs of the consumers?

Approved For Release 2000/08/28: CIA-RDP78-03130A000100020051-7